APÉRITIF PRE-DINNER

Aperitif is a type of drink enjoyed before dinner in order to “open the appetite”.

Most apéritifs are a blend of fortified wines with strong herbal qualities. It is a drink that invites you to slow down and enjoy the moment. And while most of us might not be used to taking the time to leisurely work up to our dinners, it is one routine you will not have trouble getting used to — especially since aperitifs are also known to be accompanied by tasty nibbles such as olives, nuts or canapés.

The apéritif was first introduced with the creation of vermouth in the mid-1700s by Antonio Benedetto Carpano, but it was made popular in France a century later when Joseph Dubonnet, a French chemist, created a wine-based drink that would mask the unpleasant flavor of malaria-fighting quinine. So, despite the fact that this drink was once used mainly for its medicinal properties, it has managed to stick around — and is still enjoyed by many in France, Italy and increasingly getting more popular in Australia.

Usually served straight up, chilled, or on the rocks (with a slice of citrus), the aperitif is a simple start to the meal.

ICONIC AUSTRALIAN PRODUCER - PENFOLDS

Penfolds Grange is an Australian iconic wine created by legendary winemaker Max Schubert in 1951.

About 7 years later in 1957 he has been forced to shut down his project by the company, but Max continued his work in secret and production went underground. Three years later in 1960, Max's work officially been recognized by the world. This is the rewards of the patience and his legend continues.

Robert Parker: In 1472, 300 years before the Lur Saluces family acquired the famous Château d'Yquem, they owned Château de Fargues. While de Fargues has never been classified, the quality of the wine produced is brilliant. Still owned by the Lur Saluces family, it receives virtually the identical winemaking care that Yquem does. In some vintages, de Fargues has often been the second-best wine produced in the Sauternes region, and when it is tasted blind, many tasters, including most experts, usually judge it to be Yquem. In all fairness, the wine lacks the ageing potential of Yquem, but when young, the resemblance can be extraordinary.

MADEIRA | PORTUGAL

Madeira is a fortified wine from the Madeira Islands, produced in styles ranging from dry (suitable as an aperitif) to sweet (typically enjoyed with dessert). Its origins trace back to the Age of Exploration, when neutral spirits were added to preserve the wine on long sea voyages. The exposure to heat and movement during these journeys unexpectedly enhanced the wine's flavor. This led to the development of a unique winemaking process involving deliberate heating (up to 60°C) and oxidation. As a result, Madeira is exceptionally durable and can last a long time, even after opening.
